This portrait, which is an original made from personal sittings, was recently discovered in Richmond by Mr. John L. Williams, and promptly purchased by him for the University of Virginia library. At his request, Judge L. L. Lewis, late of the Court of Appeals of Virginia, delivered an admirable address in presenting this picture to the University. Prof. W. M. Lile, of the law department, had been commissioned by the university to receive the picture, and he did so in an exceedingly adroit and skillful speech, in which he attempted a reconciliation of the views of Marshall and Jefferson. These speeches will be published in a pamphlet, which will also contain some account of the portrait itself. The portrait now hangs in the University of Virginia library, and has attracted much attention during the summer. It is exceedingly handsome, and...
