Not illustrated. 1903 Excerpt: .and he was summarily dismissed from service and his name was placed on the Black List. You can kick a good butler from behind and not a shade of emotion will pass over his face. G, It is much the same with the priest--he is supposed to reveal pious passivity and nothing else. He is paid to do certain things--officiate at burials, weddings, christenings and to pray and preach. Any relaxation of dignity is quickly resented. When he enters, laughter ceases and children crawl under the bed. So true is this that, when an exception is noted, people call your attention to it by saying, Our pastor plays cards and is a jolly good fellow. The exception proves the rule--the priest in his livery rebukes levity and spreads a pretense of solemn piety 41.n Let him mix in politics or business and he is soon called back to his proper function by a re-duction in both pay and honors. The offices of soldier and priest at first absorb all honors and all emoluments--they divide every good thing between them. And the chief characteristic of each is that neither does any work of a useful kind. They are non-producers--and conspicuously so. They advertise them-selves and the dignity of their office in two ways--by a Conspicuous Leisure and by a Conspicuous Consumption. Their entire abstention from industrial pro-Thfi PMIduction reveals this Conspicuous Leisure, and Listine the ownership of a vast number of things they do not need reveals...
