Not illustrated. 1898 Excerpt: .cents per packet, whose monthly sale amounts to 200,000 packets, pays only one cent to the Government, and a higher quality at 30 cents per packet (made, it may be remarked, of tobacco from which no nicotine has been extracted) pays six cents per packet to the Government. Sugar refining is in the hands of one factory, which supplies almost the entire consumption, estimated at over 30,000 tons per annum. This factory, which is at Rosario, I visited; it covers an extensive area, has complete railway connections, deep water frontage (where sea-going vessels discharge), and appears to be thoroughly equipped. The machinery is of diverse origin, having been bought wherever it was deemed most suitable. The principal motors, about 600 horse-power altogether, and boilers (10) are Swiss; a new large vacuum pan is German; new installation for revivifying animal charcoal is English, c. About 800 hands are employed. The factory closes for three months in the summer. Only high-class sugar is produced, and the residual molasses is now sold to distilleries or thrown away, a fine distilling plant of 8,000 litres daily capacity lying idle, as at 76 cents for the spirit there was, it was found, barely a return of cost after paying 60 cents revenue tax. No loaves are made, the chief products being tablets and broken lump. I saw the former being packed direct in 20 kilo wooden boxes (present price, $11), the pieces for making which come cut to size, tied in...
