Chapter XI. treats of the march out of Egypt. Bishop Colenso quotes Exod. xii. 37, 38: --And the children of Israel journeyed from Rameses to Succoth, about six hundred thousand on foot that were men, besides children. And a mixed multitude went up also with them; and flocks, and herds, even very much cattle. This statement, says Bishop Colenso, implies, at least, a total of two millions of people, and he pronounces the statement to be incredible; and tells us why he thinks so. Here is his reason: --Eemembering, as I do, the confusion in my Par. 74. own small household of thirty or forty persons, when once we were obliged to fly at dead of night --having been roused from our beds with a false alarm, that an invading Zulu force had entered the colony, had evaded the English troops sent to meet them, and was making its way direct for our station, killing right and left as it came along--I do not hesitate to declare this statement to be utterly incredible and impossible. Were an English village of (say) two thousand people to be called suddenly out in this way, with old people, young children, and infants, what indescribable distress there would be! But what shall be said of a thousand times as many And what of the sick and infirm, or the women in recent or imminent childbirth, in a population like that of London,...
