The grandfather of Madame Vestris, the immortal F. Bartolozzi, was a native of Florence, and is well known to have been the greatest copperplate engraver the world ever produced. He lived many years in a state of comparative indigence, from which, however, he was extricated, in consequence of the fame he acquired by engraving the well-known beautiful copperplate of the Death of the Earl of Chatham, in the House of Lords, from a painting by Copley, the father of the present Baron Lyndhurst. For this admirable performance he received the sum of two thousand pounds. After this (as he termed it) sloice of dam gud loke he continued to reside in England for some time in a state of comfort. At length he accepted very liberal offers from the Portuguese government to go to Lisbon, where, on his arrival, he was received by the lovers of the fine arts with open arms, and where his great talents soon procured for him...
